

Download How To Keep And Breed Tropical Fish

Tropical fish are generally those fish found in aquatic tropical environments around the world, including both freshwater and saltwater species. Fishkeepers often keep tropical fish in freshwater and saltwater aquariums. The term "tropical fish" is not a taxonomic group, but rather is a general term for fish found in such environments, particularly those kept in aquariums. Tropical fish profiles explaining the origins of tropical fish and the best ways to care for them and keep them in the home aquarium as well as tips on breeding and how to tell the sex of your tropical fish. Why a tropical fish site? We wanted to make it easy for you to find out the facts about different kinds of fish, together with advice on things like tank set-up, feeding, maintenance and disease control. The red tail shark is a member of the Cyprinidae family of freshwater tropical fish. The red tailed black shark falls into the same family as carp and minnows.